SERGEANT DUFFY INDICTED AS SWEENEY'S COLLECTOR OF VICE GRAFT IN HARLEM

Accusers Testify of Payments Made, Including One on Jan. 1, 1913.

NEW DISTRICT EXPOSED.

Rosie Hertz, Long Immune on East Side, to Produce Checks It is Asserted.

The Extraordinary Grand Jury, investigating police graft, found an indictment today against Sergeant Peter Duffy, who was for years the confidential man for former Inspector Dennis Sweeney in the Sixth District. The indictment against Duffy charges him with bribery and is based on evidence given by Leroy Wilkins and Gideon Young, negro keepers of saloons in Harlem, and Patrolman Eugene Fox, the self-confessed grafter who has turned State's evidence.

In addition to this active development in the police graft investigation there came a report from the District-Attorney's office that Rosie Hertz, for many years a resort keeper on the lower east side, has offered to the District-Attorney a confession in the hope of saving herself from serving a term in the penitentiary. The Hertz woman is scheduled to reveal this evening or tomorrow morning all her many dealings with police officers and politicians, and it is said she has the cancelled checks showing every payment she ever made for "protection."

Leon Levy, counsel for Rosie Hertz, denied this afternoon that his client contemplates making a confession. The denial of Mr. Levy served only to bring from the District-Attorney's office a retort of the story. Mr. Levy has made an engagement to tell Mr. Whitman about her operations on the east side to-night or tomorrow morning. It was further stated that an attack of the District-Attorney's office called on the woman in her cell at the Tombs last night to take her preliminary statement, but she said she had been advised to talk to nobody but the District-Attorney.

TELLS OF GRAFT PAID FIRST DAY OF THIS YEAR.

From the evidence of Gideon Young, given before the Grand Jury, it appears that graft collections in Sweeney's district were made up to the close of last year and after the accusations of George A. Sipp had opened up the present line of investigation. Young swore he paid his last assessment to Duffy on Jan. 1, 1913.

Leroy Wilkins, who conducts a place at No. 220 Fifth avenue, at the corner of One Hundred and Thirty-fifth street, was anything but a willing witness. He told his story to the District-Attorney yesterday and also told it to the regular Grand Jury. The District-Attorney notified him to be on hand at 11 o'clock this morning to testify before the extraordinary Grand Jury. Wilkins had not appeared at 11 o'clock. He could not be reached by telephone. Detective Al Thomas was sent to Harlem to locate him.

Thomas found Wilkins in a room over his saloon. The door was barricaded on the inside with furniture. Wilkins refused to come out until Thomas threatened to go in and drag him out.

POLICE AXES CHOP QUIETEST HOUSE IN QUIET BLOCK

Neighbors in 97th Street Are Amazed at Gambling Tools That Fill Three Wagons.

SPECTACLE FOR CROWD.

Hundreds Attracted by Noise of Smashing, Dwyer Sends for the Reserves.

The inhabitants of the quiet residence block in West Ninety-seventh street between Columbus and Amsterdam avenues, were shocked this afternoon when a company of policemen, in command of Inspector Dwyer, battered their way with an axe into the eminently respectable looking three-story brownstone dwelling at No. 136 and took therefrom enough gambling paraphernalia to fill three patrol wagons.

G. W. McCannold, the proprietor of the place, offered no protest against the removal of the property, nor was he or any of ten men found there molested.

The raid was made by authority of a search warrant, issued yesterday afternoon by Chief Magistrate McCannold on Dwyer's complaint that the place was a public nuisance. In police circles it was known as the home of the Cossaca Club, which, McCannold says, disbanded a year ago.

Inspector Dwyer, Lieut. Cooper and half a dozen plainclothes men rode in automobiles to Ninety-seventh street and Columbus avenue and walked from the corner to No. 136. Detective Kennedy carried an axe under his overcoat. Dwyer rang the bell of the house repeatedly while a crowd gathered on the curb. No response having been obtained to the bell the Inspector ordered Kennedy to chop his way in and Kennedy tackled a window on the first floor adjoining the stoop.

In smashing through the glass and a heavy wooden door, Kennedy made a lot of noise. The neighborhood, usually so quiet, was in the afternoon, sprang into life. By the time Kennedy climbed through the window Ninety-seventh street was blocked between Amsterdam avenue and Columbus avenue and the overflow was spreading toward Central park on the east and Broadway on the west.

No one appeared to oppose Kennedy while he opened a big iron sliding door inside the vestibule and then opened the outer front door. The Inspector and his men swarmed in, exhibited the search warrant to McCannold, and inspected the premises.

So great had the crowd become that Inspector Dwyer telephoned to the West One Hundredth street station for reserves. This was the first intimation the district police had of the raid.

A faro layout, a roulette table, a table fitted for dice games, especially poker dice and craps, three poker tables and stacks of cards and chips were seized. The police also took a dozen telephone instruments and a switchboard, such as have been used in poolroom information bureaus.

McCannold said he lived in the house and conducted a brokerage office there. The men in the place were gathered about a ticker in the back parlor when the police broke in. The upper floors were fitted for household purposes and the establishment had the usual equipment of servants.

MILITANTS BURN PARK PAVILION; RIOT IN COURT

Two Women Caught in Kew Gardens, Hurl Books at Judge and Fight Police.

BOMB GUILT ADMITTED.

Mrs. Pankhurst Says She Is Responsible for Destruction of Lloyd-George Home.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—The militant suffragettes reverted to arson again today, setting fire to and completely destroying the restaurant pavilion in the botanical gardens around Kew Palace. Two young women, Lillian Lenton and Joyce Locke, both prominent in the ranks of the militants, were caught by the police trying to escape from the gardens. They were seen to throw away an old portmanteau in which was found paraphernalia for starting the fire. A violent courtroom scene followed their arraignment.

The Kew Gardens pavilion burst into flame at about 3 A. M. The walls had been soaked with kerosene. Piles of oil soaked shavings and cotton had been heaped about the floor and "votes for women" cards scattered about. The sudden blaze warned the police that the fire was incendiary and they quickly formed a cordon around the gardens to prevent the escape of any one still within the gates.

The firemen had difficulty in preventing the flames from spreading to other buildings in the gardens. Their efforts to extinguish the fire in the pavilion were fruitless and the structure was burned to the ground.

THREATEN HUNGER STRIKE IF SENT TO JAIL.

While the firemen were at work and the police were holding back the crowds that tried to break into the gardens the two suffragettes were seen making their stealthy way toward the wall. Several police rushed upon them and, seeing themselves surrounded, one of the girls threw the portmanteau behind a bush. Both laughed as the police arrested them, and when the match was opened in their presence and they were asked to explain what they were doing with bottles of kerosene, wads of cotton and shavings and "votes for women" cards they refused to answer, demanding that they be taken to court.

In the Richmond Police Court Miss Lenton gave her age as twenty-two and Miss Locke twenty-three. They assumed the most defiant attitude toward the Magistrate, and laughed and joked with the women spectators. Miss Locke demanded bail, threatening that if she and her companion were sent to prison they would go on a hunger strike and force the keepers either to starve them to death or release them.

"You cannot frighten this Court nor shall we permit you to attempt to intimidate us," declared the Magistrate hotly.

With a scream of defiance Miss Locke picked up a handful of papers and hurled them at the Magistrate's head. She followed them with two or three law books from the desk in front of her and kept the Magistrate ducking his head to escape the missiles before the court attendants could seize her and prevent further violence.

WOMEN CARRIED OUT OF COURT SCREAMING DEFIANCE.

A furious struggle followed during which the police and court attendants had to resort to harsh methods to subdue the women.

C. H. Mackay Puts Estate In the Hands of Trustees And Society Wonders

Meaning of the Transfer of Big Roslyn Country Place Not Made Clear.

By signing with her husband a trust deed which was filed with the County Clerk of Minnesota today, Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay parted with her dower right in the $6,000,000 Mackay country place, Harbor Hill, at Roslyn. A way has been afforded also of avoiding any inheritance tax on the property in event of Mr. Mackay's death. What other reasons may underlie the making of the deed are left open to speculation by the society friends of the Mackays. On its face the document disposes of the estate in the event of Mr. Mackay's death without the necessity of taking it through the Surrogate's office.

Under its terms John William Mackay, the son, is to inherit the property, and not his mother. In the event of his death before he is twenty-one years old the place is to go to his sisters, Katharine and Ellen.

Mrs. and Mr. Mackay moved to the Plaza Hotel from the St. Regis two weeks ago and installed their own furniture. It was said at the hotel that Mr. Mackay was away today though he was at the hotel yesterday. Mrs. Mackay is ill and confined to her room. She sent word to an Evening World reporter that the matter was not one which she would discuss.

William W. Cook, the lawyer named in the trust deed as co-trustee with Mr. Mackay, declined to make any explanation. Mr. Mackay went South today to be gone three or four weeks. The trustees have full control of the estate. They are required to allow Clarence H. Mackay its use as long as he lives, but are authorized to lease the place, if desired, during his lifetime.

The income, if the place is leased, is to be paid to Mrs. Mackay or, in the event of her death, to the son. If the son should die after his mother, but before his father, the income is to be paid to the other children, Katharine and Ellen. Mackay.

In the event of the death of Clarence H. Mackay the surviving trustee is directed to allow John William Mackay to occupy the home at Harbor Hill until he is twenty-one years old, when the property is to be given to him. Upon the death of father and son, without children of the son, the property goes to the daughters. If both daughters die before coming into possession of properties allotted to them their shares shall go to the son or his children, if any.

The trustees may sell any of the trust property and invest the proceeds for the benefit of Clarence H. Mackay or his heirs at law. They are permitted to invest in securities at will and specifically in the Mackay Companies and its subsidiary concerns.

The trustees are empowered to buy another estate for Clarence H. Mackay should the Harbor Hill place be sold. If

ARSON TRUST HEAD, FOUND GUILTY, MAY BE GIVEN 25 YEARS

Jury Convicts Robert J. Rubin, Insurance, After Ten Minutes' Deliberation.

FIREBUG HIS ACCUSER.

"Izzy, the Painter," Also Will Be State's Chief Witness Against Grutz.

The jury which heard the evidence in the trial of Robert J. Rubin, an insurance adjuster, of No. 208 Broadway, accused of arson in the second degree, returned a verdict of guilty, this afternoon, after ten minutes of deliberation. Rubin was remanded to the Tombs by Justice Goff, to await sentence on Monday, and the trial of George Grutz, of No. 10 East One Hundred and Second streets, another adjuster, under indictment for arson, who immediately began.

Later Stein, alias "Izzy the Painter," professional firebug, who is serving a term of ten to twelve to twenty-four years in this State, was the chief witness against Rubin. He will be against Grutz. Rubin and Grutz are said by the District-Attorney and Fire Marshal Pridl to have been two of the leaders of the Harjo and Bronx "Arson Trust."

The case against Rubin showed he employed Stein to set fire to the furniture in a flat occupied by Stein at No. 110 East One Hundred and Thirty-fifth street. Grutz acted as agent in insuring the furniture for $1,200 with the Pennsylvania Fire Insurance Company and acted in behalf of Stein in settling the loss for $410.

This particular fire was specified in the indictment. Stein told of other fires he said he had been employed by Rubin to start, and said he went to work for Rubin as a firebug after he had learned the business from other adjusters.

Both Rubin and Grutz are men of means. The extreme penalty for the crime of which Rubin was convicted and Grutz stands accused is twenty-five years' imprisonment.

MICE STAMPEDE SUFFRAGIST HIKERS; SOME RUNNING YET

Squeakers Let Loose by Boys Bring Panic and Rout to "Gen." Jones's Army.

NEWARK, Del., Feb. 20.—Unless they slow up some of the suffragist hikers will be back in New York before night, few it was in that direction that some of them headed, and when disappearing were making at least one hundred miles an hour and going strong. Reason? Mice!

It looked as though every one of the pesky little critters on the whole Eastern seaboard were turned loose by wicked little boys when the army tramped into Newark today after a forced march from Wilmington. There were hundreds of them—mice, not hikers—and they put the army to complete rout.

In all directions fled the suffragettes that have braved pretty nearly everything on the calendar since they started to march from New York to Washington. The mice accomplished what a jeering crowd of "anti" and annoyingly enthusiastic college boys failed utterly to do. Within a minute the mice had complete control of the situation and late this afternoon it looked as though it will be some time before any semblance of discipline is restored.

The army had hoped to reach Elkhart, Md., where it was planned to spend the night.

DEATH OF MADERO OR DECREE OF EXILE RESTS WITH HUERTA

Provisional President and His Cabinet Meet To-Night to Decide Case of Deposed Official, Who Sullenly Waits in Cell.

FELIX DIAZ PROMISES TO PROTECT FOREIGNERS

Madero's Secretary Captured in Flight in an Automobile and Taken Back to Mexico City.

3,000 Killed, 7,000 Wounded, Millions in Property Lost, Cost of Civil War in Mexico

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 20.—The closest estimates obtainable of the casualties during the fighting in the streets show that about 3,000 persons, the great majority of whom were private citizens comprising many women and children, were killed, while 7,000 were wounded. These are not Government figures, nor has the Government made any reliable calculation, since in most cases no official records were made of the bodies gathered in the streets and in the houses shattered by shells, carted to open spaces outside the city and burned.

The estimates as to the loss of property are necessarily guesswork, but there is no doubt the damage amounted to many millions dollars. Magnificent residences were shot full to pieces and great business houses in the downtown districts suffered a similar fate.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 20.—The life of Francisco Madero, the deposed President of Mexico, lies in the hands of the newly formed Cabinet. The Cabinet, with Gen. Huerta sitting as a member, will decide the issue of death or exile for the imprisoned Executive some time to-night.

Madero is now the personal prisoner of Provisional President Huerta, who refuses to accept the responsibility of deciding his fate alone.

WITNESS DROPS DEAD LEAVING THE STAND AFTER TESTIFYING

Abraham Fox Had Finished Telling Justices How His Chickens Were Stolen.

Abraham Fox, complaining witness in a larceny case being heard before Justices Salmon, Dowl and Harman in the Court of Special Sessions today, suddenly toppled from his chair dead. This followed a minute after he had been seen to swallow a pill from a bottle.

It looked as though every one of the pesky little critters on the whole Eastern seaboard were turned loose by wicked little boys when the army tramped into Newark today after a forced march from Wilmington. There were hundreds of them—mice, not hikers—and they put the army to complete rout.
